Un [un], negative part. used as prefix (in compounds with subst.'s, adj.'s, adv.'s and p.p.'s, —) un-, in-, im-, dis-, ir-, not, non-. The principal meanings of un- are: 1. absolute negation, e.g. Unglück, unwahr; 2. a bad sort of, e.g. Unmensch, Untier; 3. excessive amount, e.g. Unmenge, Unsumme. Only the most important of the numberless compounds with un- can be given here. The meaning of others will be obvious when un-, in-, or not are prefixed to the equivalent of the second part of the compound. If the second word is a participle, see the verb to which it belongs. In case it is a derivative in -bar, -lich or -sam look out the verb from which it is derived. The accentuation of the compounds with un- is in some cases doubtful; the usual one has been indicated. As a rule it may be noted that in the case of compounds with nouns (Unsinn) and adjectives (untreu) the principal accent is on the prefix un-, especially if the word without un- is of frequent occurrence. In other cases it is possible to place the accent so as to emphasise either the negation or the second part of the compound. Note the glottal stop in compounds with un- the second part of which begins with a vowel, e.g. unabhängig.
